My dear Nathleen;

charming, sagacious and interesting Your last letter. You do not write often to Your old Professor, so I could be en protege; but the news You gave me where such a great pleasure to me, I was so glad to know that, after Norway and Holland You did find another country where people appreciates Your talent, a sa juste valeur!

To You are pardoned for this little negligence, and I never liked You more as I do now.

Thank You so very much for Your copping upon my health. I am not dead at all, always working, studying. About all these things I prefer to give You the details orally as I am a hard writer, especially in English.

So I shall be in London perhaps before You arrive.

Misfortunetly the scotch lady at 98 Portland Place gave up the house, so I asked Rouay to find me an appartement. In any case
You will find my adress at Mayer's.

Thanks for the "Courier".

How shall I put the name of the celebrated Canadian violinist, Kathleen Parlow, on the list of my pupils?

Now, she will have her own special list. - very glad if the little Hayden piece makes you pleasure.

Hearty kisses for you and mother. - With love yours

You know already that I had the visit of Mr. Robinson?
